

FLYING PULLEY KILLS WORKMAN

While helping to lift a fifteen-ton granite block at the Messett Monument Works, 2727 First Ave. S., yesterday afternoon, Lyle Jones, 18 years old, 4738 Ninth Ave. N. E., was instantly killed. The rope on the hoist parted and a large pulley block struck Jones on the head.

With the aid of electric light a Utah scientist claims to have produced sugar beet seeds in one year instead of two.

Approximately 70 per cent of all the raw silk used throughout the world is exported by Japan.